Centurion Varsity, TAFE ink pact for tech edu

The Centurion University and TAFE-NSW of Australia have signed a pact for exchanging knowledge and the best practices in technical vocational education and training, especially focused on integration of skill development with mainstream education.

Out of hundreds of applicants this year, only six were selected by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Federal Government of Australia through TAFE and the Centurion University is one. Both TAFE and Centurion University shall share expertise on best practices for training youth from Indigenous communities.

In December last, a five-member team from Gram Tarang, Centurion University, had visited the TAFE-NSW to experience and learn their way of skill training and delivery. The university is the youngest in the country to have been accorded Grade-A by NAAC and 12 (b) status by the UGC and widely acclaimed as a leader in the field of skill training.
