Centurion University Graded As “Section 1 University” by Australian Government

The Department of Education and Training of Australian Government conducts a periodic review and assessment of the education profile of collaborating countries. Centurion University has been graded at the highest level, i.e., “Section 1 University”, which means that the Bachelor and Master degrees of CUTM are deemed to be equivalent to Australian degrees.

Centurion University is the youngest university in India to have been bestowed this rare distinction, which it is sharing with a few other veteran Universities in India.

Centurion University is also the youngest University in India to be accredited with GRADE-A by the National Assessment and Accreditation Council (NAAC) of the University Grants Commission (UGC).

The Australian Government’s Department of Education and Training works in tandem with the Australian and International education sector, other government agencies and ministries for international collaboration. In Australia, the Department provides leadership and coordination across government, delivering programs and policies, to support mobility and the global exchange of knowledge.

Centurion is a 5-year old University, with its Campuses strewn in tribal, Left Wing Extremist Affected (LWEA) and difficult geographies. The University has come to be known as an international reference point for integrating skills with and mainstream education. It strives to design, deliver and conduct all its courses in partnership with industry in order to create graduates who are employable and employment ready.

Centurion University through its social entrepreneurship outreach entity, Gram Tarang is continuously striving to bring about a difference in these difficult geographies both academically and socio-economically.
