About the session:

This event was conducted on 7.11.2020 at CUTM with the total number of participants 175. This event was inaugurated by our respected registrar madam Dr. Anita Patra. Dr. Supriya Pattnaik, Hon’ble Vice Chancellor, Dr. Somnath Mondal, Assistant Professor of U.B.K.V. and Dr. Prithu Sayak Mondal, Assistant Professors of U.B.K.V. were the resource persons for this workshop.

Nanoparticles used as drug delivery vehicles generally range in the size with < 100 nm in at least one dimension and are composed of different biodegradable materials like natural or synthetic polymers, lipids, or metals. Nanoparticles coated with drugs are taken up by cells more efficiently than larger micromolecules and thereby they serve as efficient carriers for transport in delivery systems. Nanosystems with different compositions and biological properties have been extensively investigated for drug and gene delivery applications. The current thrust is on the development of efficient drug delivery nanosystems based on the understanding of their interactions with the biological environment, target cell population, target cell-surface receptors, changes in cell receptors that occur with progression of disease, mechanism and site of drug action, drug retention, multiple drug administration, molecular mechanisms, and pathobiology of the disease under consideration.

Dr. Somnath Mondal had given a brief idea through his presentation on the topic of “Types of drug delivery system based on nanotechnology”. Dr. Prithu Sayak Mondal discussed on the applications of Nano-drug delivery system in various systems. A question-answer session was organized by the end of the session in order to gain a better understanding on the topic. Lastly, the program concluded with a vote of thanks by the Dean, Student Affairs, Dr. Atanu Deb.

Objective:

- The workshop was organised with a prime objective of imparting a basic knowledge on the use of different nano particles to mediate in the delivery of drugs to different target systems.
- The workshop also had provided an insight on the creation of different type of nano particles like gold and silver nano particles.

Outcome:

- The participants of the workshop to gain a thorough knowledge on the different methods involved in the creation of nano particles as well as how to efficiently use these in the areas in medicine and allied sectors
