Name of the event: Cyber Security: Linux Administration

Total number of participants: 85

Date: 06/06/2018

The primary objective of the programme was to develop skills to manage a Linux server and provide basic security to the server. Data is the most powerful currency of the modern digital world, and making sure that it's managed and protected is vital for every organisation across the globe. With this course the participants could enhance their knowledge and skillset in areas of data management and cyber security to advance their careers in this fast-paced and exciting field.

The focus areas of discussion of the programme was based on the following points:

- Access the command line, Recovery of the root user password
- Managing files from the command line
- Creating, Viewing, and Editing Text Files
- Managing Local Linux Users and Groups
- Linux File System Permissions
- Monitoring and Managing Linux Processes
- Archiving and Copying Files Between Systems
- Installing and Updating Software Packages
- Accessing Linux File Systems
- Linux Networking

Monitoring and managing Cyber Security on 06.06.2018

The programme was a successful one as the participants were able to showcase their knowledge through some practical demonstrations.

System administration involves creating a user account, taking reports, performing backup, updating configuration files, documentation, and performing recovery actions.

The user who manages the server, fixes configuration issues, recommends new software updates, and updates document is the system administrator.
