About the session:

Lack of pedagogical training for medical teachers has often been commented on. Over the last half century or so, several formal and informal avenues are available for teacher training. Amongst the so-called informal modes, microteaching (MT) has been a very widely discussed, demonstrated and sometimes used tool since 1960. However, its use has not been proportional to the advantages that are likely to accrue from its use. MT was originally introduced for 'teachers in the making' (or for pre-service training) during their training for bachelor or master's in education programmes. The Purpose of MT is to provide a non-threatening environment to the teacher so as to practice and improve one's teaching skills by receiving feedback from colleagues on one's teaching skills

Objective

- Plan
- Teach
- Observe
- Re-plan
- Re-teach
- Re-observe

Outcome: Micro Teaching is an innovative method of training wherein the teacher trainee or a student-teacher conducts a class for a small group of students for a small time. This is intended to enhance the skills of teachers. By focusing on a specific skill at one time, this approach has proved to be beneficial. It is important to have micro teaching skills.
